

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
Artists' recipes as sources for the history of art technology	1
Diversity, function and reliability of artists' recipe collections	2
The Strasbourg Manuscript: a medieval collection of artists' recipes	6
Authorship and authority	7
Diffusion and tradition	7
Comparative analysis	8
The revised text: a new edition of the Strasbourg Manuscript	8
Variations within the texts	9
Artistic practices in context: originality and survival	9
Organisation of this book	10
Chapter 1 The Strasbourg Manuscript	13
1.1 Discovery and reception	13
The Strasbourg Library, Ms. A VI 19	13
The so-called 'Strasbourg Manuscript'	14
Referring to the Strasbourg Manuscript: use and abuse	16
1.2 Former and current form of the Strasbourg Manuscript	16
The Strasbourg Manuscript within Ms. A VI 19	16
The Eastlake copy: structure previously proposed	19
Re-evaluation of the Eastlake copy	24
1.3 Restoring the text of the Strasbourg Manuscript	26
Traditions of artistic recipe collections	26
Previous identifications of witnesses of the Strasbourg Manuscript text	27
Recourse to an informatical tool: a database of artists' recipe collections	28
List of the manuscripts of the Strasbourg Tradition	29
The distinct sequences of the Strasbourg Manuscript text	29
Reconstruction of the former structure	39
Chapter 2 The Strasbourg Tradition in context	45
2.1 Transmission of knowledge: the Fachliteratur	45
Practical medicine and utilitarian knowledge	46
Nature, corpus and elements	49

2.2 Medieval recipe collections: relationship and distinction	51
Community of practices and materials	51
The practice and the theory	52
The recipe: contamination and association	55
2.3 The genesis and peregrinations of the Strasbourg Tradition	56
Dates and provenance	56
Between written and oral transmission: the plurality of sources	59
Modalities of execution: the copying and compilation process	64
Authorship, authority and validity	68
Circulation of the text	70
Modalities of composition and dissemination: the consequences	71
Chapter 3 The Strasbourg Manuscript: English translation with German transliteration	73
3.1 Presentation and conventions	73
A comparative analysis	73
Terms and terminology used in the English translation	75
Notes on Eastlake's translation	76
Measurements and units	78
3.2 The new edition of the Strasbourg Manuscript and translation	79
Chapter 4 Commentary	155
4.1 Binding media, varnishes and adhesives	157
Aqueous media	157
Oil media	160
Varnishes	161
4.2 Preparing, refining and tempering colouring materials	163
Reds	164
Blues	169
From red to blue: anthocyanin colourants	173
Greens	175
Yellows	177
Browns	179
Blacks	179
4.3 Inks	180
4.4 Mixtures and modelling	184
Mixtures: painting in violet and purple	184
Colours for flourishing	185

Incompatibilities	185
Modelling faces	185
Depicting hair	186
Modelling drapery	186
Modelling landscape objects	187
4.5 Use and imitation of gold and silver	188
Preparation of the gilding ground	188
Amelioration and imitation: glaze on metal leaf	190
Gold and silver inks	191
4.6 Preparation of supports	192
Parchment	192
Horn	193
Chapter 5 The Strasbourg Manuscript and its tradition: original function and current relevance	195
5.1 Scribes, owners and readers' interventions	195
Attempts at facilitating the consultation of the text	196
Highlighting, completing and correcting the text	197
Unrelated annotations	198
5.2 Literary or practical purpose: textual clues	199
Unintentional variation I: the lacuna	200
Unintentional variation II: the deformation	202
Intentional variation: the reworked text	203
5.3 Technological relevance and specificities	205
Background of the scribes or authors	205
The technical specificities of the Strasbourg Manuscript	206
Identifying the Strasbourg Tradition: some particular illuminating techniques and materials in medieval South Germany	209
Appendices	217
I New edition of the Leiden Vossianus Chymicus Octavo 6	217
II Reconstructions of anthocyanin recipes	233
Bibliography	241
Historical sources	241
Manuscripts used	241
Printed works	244
Index	261